Base Metal Related News

Base metals prices fell as US stock indexes plunged as tech shares snap a ten-day winning streak, while their counterparts on the LME traded higher.

Imports for aluminium alloy have surged over the past few months.

Copper prices gained on Friday following low inventories in exchange warehouses, disrupted ore supplies and solid economic recovery in top consumer China.

Net long positioning of investment funds and other financial institutions on LME copper were at record highs, exchange data published since 2018 showed, indicating bullish sentiment for LME copper contracts.

The latest customs data showed that China's copper ore imports jumped 12.6% on the month to 1.79 million mt in July, and Peru's copper output has returned to normal levels.

The dollar's bounce extended on Thursday as investors trimmed bets against the greenback and sold the euro on concerns that the European Central Bank was worried about its rise.

Base Metal Outlook

Base metals are trading slightly higher today. We expect prices to trade negative on stronger dollar and production restarts of metals. However higher metals imports in China are supporting the demand for metals for the short term.
